Note to the reader

I am aware of the issue of "deletion" in linguistics, which argue that in the past Hazaras did not have (the sound of) some of the consonants, e.g.

ٹ ح ڈ ع و ی مے

or vowels instate of a,e,i,o,u used Arabic

e.g

ء د و ئ ي

But the implication of vowels in Hazaragi language are not applied in a sentence as in the case of English language, but rather used in the form of auxiliary.

P.S: Also; The alphabet here-in adopted, are based on sound or pronunciation, rather than linguistic principles. It is because the Gen Y, Z may use it that way.

P.S.S: I also know that it is not complete or comprehensive in any way and will improve it over time.

(Thanks for your understanding)
